

LEONA BERLIN INFO

Leona Berlin is an artist, who has something to say. She doesn't just want to make music, but to give people inspiration and food for thought. With her atmospheric Urban Soul she provides the listener with a deep insight into her own cosmos. Her open and direct nature is as real as her last name and makes every live show a unique exciting experience.

After collaborating with internationally known musicians such as Ray Angry (The Roots), Casey Benjamin and Burniss Earl Travis (Robert Glasper Experiment) for her debut album („Leona Berlin“, Warner Music 2018), Leona is currently working on her second album, which will be released in late summer this year. Her first single "Monkeys" was released in June 2019 and further singles will follow, including the single "Wrong Lane", which features hip-hop icon Snoop Dogg.

Leona attaches great importance to her own, authentic expression, both musically and in terms of content. Leona: “My top priority is to be authentic without having to fit in a box. I would like to give an example of how authenticity is needed and demanded, especially in today's media superficiality.“ She writes and produces her songs herself, inspired and influenced by her greatest role models as well as close musicians and producers from her team.

To date, Leona has been seen live on various stages and festivals (including Women of the World Festival, TEDx Hamburg, Jazzclub A-Trane, Peppermint Club LA), as well as a support act for, among others, Al Jarreau, PJ Morton, Seinabo Sey and Lisa Stansfield.

Süddeutsche Zeitung: (...)As a singer, she masters everything that is needed in the soul section: A clear voice, but also strength and foundation as well as the necessary shot of blackness and roughness. (...)

Focus: (...)Leona Berlin's timbre is clear and scratchy, her articulation has something compelling to it that you won't forget, and her artistic idealism is a clear trump card..(...)
